Time Constraints:

The Washington State Building Code Council adopted the 2018 Building, Fire, and 2020 National Electrical Codes to become effective on July 1, 2020, and Governor Inslee Proclamation 20-40 "Stay Home Stay Safe" postponed the adoption until November 1, 2020. The National Electrical Code has been postponed to October 30, 2020, with the State Building Code Council (SBCC) postponing the adoption of all other codes until February 1, 2020.

ANTICIPATED RESULT IF NOT APPROVED:

If Redmond does not adopt the new codes, there could be a negative fiscal impact on our Building Code Effectiveness Grading Schedule (BCEGS) classifications, and our Washington Survey and Rating Bureau Municipal Fire Protection rating which are used by property/casualty insurers in determining rates paid by building owners in our jurisdiction. Our current BCEGS rating is a two (2) which is the second-highest rating. The rating is dependent upon; code adoption, staff qualifications, public awareness, and structural provisions.
